

A roundtable and lecture by
Dr. Sarojini Nadimpally

Tues. Sept. 26, 5:30 - 7:30 PM

Roundtable discussion on India's recent Supreme Court ruling on privacy rights with Dr. Nadimpally
Glickman Conference Center (CLA 1.302B)

Privacy is not constitutionally guaranteed in India. But the new Supreme Court ruling on extending privacy, emerging from public interest litigation against biometric information on state-issued identity cards, has widespread implications for progressive developments in India right from queer rights to bioethics. Join a discussion co-sponsored by SAI and led by Dr. Sarojini Nadimpally on what privacy rights mean in the current Indian political context.

Fri. Sept. 29, 12:00 - 1:00 PM

Lecture on "The Trial of Public Health in India: Questions for Ethics and Justice" Glickman Conference Center (CLA 1.302D)

Dr. Sarojini Nadimpally is a public health researcher and Scientist in Delhi, and a leading feminist bioethicist in India. Through the Delhi-based non-profit SAMA, which she co-founded in 1999, Sarojini has led several studies on public health, reproductive technologies and surrogacy, ethics in clinical trials, access to medicines especially for marginalised communities, right to health in India's conflict zones (specifically, Kashmir, Gujarat and Uttar Pradesh). She is the co-organiser of the forthcoming 14th World Congress on Bioethics to be held in India in 2018.

Food and refreshments will be served at both the roundtable and lecture

Sponsored by the South Asia Institute, the Center for Asian American Studies, the Social Justice Institute, the Center for Women's & Gender Studies, the Department of Sociology, the LBJ School of Public Affairs, and the Rapoport Center for Human Rights and Justice

